

Welcome to the new epsiplatform design!

Submitted on 10 Oct 2011 by ePSIplatform Team

As you have noticed, we've changed the design of the ePSIplatform.eu. We hope it turns this site into a friendlier and more easily usable place.

The changes however go deeper than just the design. When we started in March with our stewardship of this platform, we wanted to put you, people, more in the center of things. Until now this platform has been a great source of content, but people were largely invisible. Yet it is people that move PSI re-use forward in Europe. So while we will still be offering lots of content, we also want to make you more visible.

This means that, from now on,

you can write your own blog postings at epsiplatform.eu

you can more easily respond or comment

you can form groups

you can more easily find events in your neighbourhood

you can see what is happening in local communities around Europe and that soon you will be able to also share your anecdotes and stories about PSI re-use and open government data.