

Open Education and School Data in Europe?

Submitted on 05 Jul 2013 by Reinout van Brakel

Dear all, just new to this interesting platform, I am wondering whether there are other members specifically interested in the use of open Education data. By this, I mean primarily information about schools (from primary to tertiary). In The Netherlands several initiatives exist, and data about schools have become more open in the last years. This week an on-line database was launched, with information from the Inspectorate, combined with various other government databases. The use of open educational resources is another relevant topic for this sector. I would be very interested to get in touch with experts from other member states, so we can compare practices.

Reinout van Brakel, Ecorys NL, Onderwijs in Grafieken