

OKFN Award on Open Knowledge, Open data and Transparency

Submitted on 13 Feb 2014 by Alberto Abella

On February the 24th, the first OKFN award to Open Knowledge will be held, Open Data and Transparency, organized by the local group in Spain of OKFN.

The award consists of six categories:

- Best initiative to promote entrepreneurship based on open knowledge
- Better business based on open knowledge
- Best transparency initiative (non-public entity)
- Best Open science initiative
- Best initiative on Transparency through the use of Open Data (Public entity)
- Best Open data initiative with involvement of citizens (Public entity)

The candidates will be chosen by a jury of more than 50 people and the award ceremony will take place in the BBVA Innovation Center (Plaza Santa Barbara, 2, Madrid). Three innovative initiatives in the fields of Open Knowledge, Open Data and Transparency will be also introduced, and two presentations by Juanjo Uralde, leader of EQUO party, and Antonio Ibañez from the Open Government of Castilla y León.

The nomination process is open. Once admitted candidates can add / modify information and people can add their comments. Submitted applications and more information can be reached at the prize web in <http://premio.okfn.es>

OKFN Spain is the local chapter (to be) of the Open Knowledge Foundation, a non-profit foundation to promote open knowledge with presence in over 40 countries. You can contact us at premio@okfn.es