Description

The website allows citizens, companies, and interested parties to explore state spending in Finland. Users can deep-dive into three categories: the procuring governmental departments, supplying organizations, and types of goods that have been bought. In each section, user can see a ranking of the top five of a category, such as top five procuring departments. In addition, the section provides a list of all procuring departments including volume and growth rate in percentage.

Benefits

- The website promotes transparency on governmental spending and enables an informed debate about state spending in Finland.
- The website provides an overview on the payments and recipients of state spending in Finland.

How open data is used

The website's data source is the state electronic invoicing system of Finland. The different invoices add up to the overviews on governmental spending.
