Description

Xatkit is a generic and extensible platform for the creation of digital assistants. Through a conversational interface generated by Xatkit, citizens can "talk" with open data through the chatbot, making inquiries just as they were talking to an expert on the subject. The service is aimed at public administrations that are interested in publishing and facilitating citizens' access to public data, and organisations interested in facilitating the marketing of their data. Xatkit provides the interface that allows data access.

Benefits

Xatkit follows a "low-code" philosophy that allows bots to be created without programming skills. Additionally, the Xatkit team offers custom professional chatbot creation services.
